for School Attendance (INSA)

05.10.23, 11⁰⁰ – 13⁴⁵ | Schlaues Haus Oldenburg,
Schloßplatz 16, 26122 OL

This presentation takes us on an illuminating journey through the field of school attendance, combining insightful analysis with compelling data from studies. Discover the (un)remarkable progress made in the 90 years since Broadwin's groundbreaking exploration of "a form of truancy associated with neurosis". Delve into the pressing question of why so many young people struggle to form a positive relationship with education. We will also delve into the role played by the International Network for School Attendance in supporting scientific advancements and driving meaningful change in practice. Prepare to be inspired as we explore the past, present, and future of school attendance and its transformative potential. The presentation includes a Q & A.

PhD David Heyne, co-founder of the International Network for School Attendance (INSA), brings 30 years of experience in the field of school attendance, encompassing practical, research, and scholarly work.
