Letting Your Views be Challenged

Religion has become a huge social topic once more since the start of the millennium. How can we coexist peacefully in a religiously diverse world? Religion educationalist Joachim Willems is looking for answers.

He was young and in love – these thoughts were the last thing he wanted in his life at that point, Joachim Willems was studying Buddhism, hardly an usual activity for a student of theology, but for Willems it became a defining experience. What if he decided to pursue this philosophy? Wouldn’t that mean calling into question his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life?

Willems became a defining experience. What if he decided to pursue this philosophy? Wouldn’t that mean calling into question his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life?

Willems was studying Buddhism, hardly an unusual activity for a student of theology, but for Willems it became a defining experience. What if he decided to pursue this philosophy? Wouldn’t that mean calling into question his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life?

Willems was studying Buddhism, hardly an unusual activity for a student of theology, but for Willems it became a defining experience. What if he decided to pursue this philosophy? Wouldn’t that mean calling into question his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life?

Willems was studying Buddhism, hardly an unusual activity for a student of theology, but for Willems it became a defining experience. What if he decided to pursue this philosophy? Wouldn’t that mean calling into question his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life?

Willems was studying Buddhism, hardly an unusual activity for a student of theology, but for Willems it became a defining experience. What if he decided to pursue this philosophy? Wouldn’t that mean calling into question his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life? And by logical extension withdrawing his whole worldview and way of life?